

Argentina Timeline

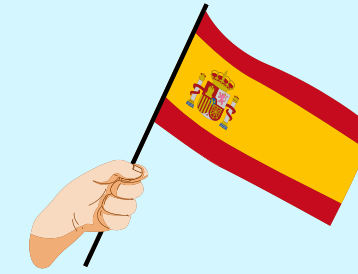

1500

Many different communities of indigenous people had lived in Argentina. The majority of them were there long before Argentina was a country so they included different languages, societies, and relations.

1600

Spain was the first country to colonize Argentina during the 16th century. Their colonization lasted for three centuries and expanded through some part of South America.

1816

Argentina declares their independence during the mid-19th century, after these people have become a mixture between different national and ethnic groups from Italian and Spanish immigrants.

1

2

3

2022

Police abuse is one of Argentina's long-standing human rights issues. Some government-promoted proposed legal reforms to the justice system and the Attorney General's Office jeopardize their independence.

5

1980

From 27% in 1980 to 50.2% in 2010, displacing oil as the primary energy source. During these years, oil absolute values remained stable, while natural gas values and share increased in tandem with energy demand and production, owing primarily to increased industrial and residential consumption.

4

